About Georgia Press Association

The Georgia Press Association was founded in 1887 to unite many of the state's editors and publishers and create an organization that would protect, promote, foster and advance the interests of the newspaper industry in Georgia. Today the Georgia Press Association continues to grow and support the efforts outlined by its founders.

The Georgia Press Association offers different types of membership status. Whether you are directly involved in newspapers; selling a product, service or idea; or work with the media, the Georgia Press Association can help you know the issues and individuals that matter in the newspaper industry. We invite you to become a member.

More about what GPA offers:

The Georgia Press Association provides all types of advertising placement in Georgia newspapers through its affiliate, Georgia Newspaper Service Inc. (GNS). GNS offers "one-order, one-bill, one-check service," which allows advertisers with multiple insertions to use one source for placement, collection of tearsheets and payment.

The Georgia Press Educational Foundation Inc. (GPEF) is a nonprofit, tax-exempt foundation established in 1963 to provide financial assistance to students studying journalism at colleges and universities throughout the state.

The Georgia College Press Association (GCPA) is an organization dedicated to assisting in the betterment of Georgia collegiate journalism and providing a reciprocal flow of information between its member colleges. Membership in GCPA is an excellent opportunity for print journalism students to discuss issues common to college newspapers and to network with newspaper professionals.

For more information and member benefits, please contact our headquarters in Atlanta at 770-454-6776 or visit the GPA website at www.gapress.org.

The Cherokee Ledger-News is the County's No. 1 source for local news!

Cherokee County's most trusted news source for 20 years.

Georgia newspapers offer the best of both worlds

Georgians have the widest access to public notices of any state in the nation, thanks to the newspaper industry.

In 2007, a joint effort of the Georgia Press Association and state newspapers resulted in www.GeorgiaPublicNotice.com — a free website listing public notices from each of the state's 159 counties.

The site was redesigned in 2014, is still free to use and searchable by map, county, category and keyword.

Georgia newspapers do not charge local governments for providing this extra service. It's done to give Georgians the best access possible to public notices — the information that affects lives every day.

The Georgia Municipal Association is here to help you cover city hall. Our publication, "A Reporter's Guide to Covering City Hall," is designed to serve as a primer on city government in Georgia. You can download or view a copy of it on GMA's website, www.gmanet.com, under "Publications." There, you'll also find other documents that explain how cities operate or provide background and sample policies for cities to follow.
